

aim of experiment: we are trying to propose an experiment to prove that there are no more discoveries like gravity and electromagnetism that can be applied to make inventions through better understanding of the universe and in fact saying that gravity and electromagnetism are produced from each other through recycling of energy (heat) in the universe from gravity and to electromagnetism and from electromagnetism to gravity back and forth experiment: bring two balls of equal volume and mass of iron and a vacuumed room from air and hang them with a material that is both thin and very strong and wait till they move through gravitating a distance of 1 meter toward each other and calculate the time taken till the two balls touch each other and repeat the experiment and after the balls touch each other many times calculate the heat produced when you put the two balls in two heat isolating water containers containing vaporizing water by the heat of the two balls separately now repeat the experiment using electromagnetism (electromagnets) but this time make the distance more than 1 meter preferably a very long distance then calculate the time taken so that the two balls vaporize as much water as in the gravity experiment now try to make the variables of velocity and amount of vaporized water in both gravitation and electromagnetism experiments equal so that distance divided by time are equal in the two cases and the heat in the two cases equal if these variables of velocity and heat are equal in electromagnetism and gravity experiments we can deduce that energy or heat is recycled between gravity and electromagnetism and that there are no more discoveries in the universe and that gravity and electromagnetism are the only two discoveries available and that there are no more inventions possible since heat is the main form of energy in the universe
