

electromagnetic waves are masses that oscillate both ways (up and down and to the sides at the same time perpendicular to its direction of motion